

A COMMITMENT TO QUALITY

Available to any professional wishing to make the knife under their own brand name, "Le Thiers" is not just a knife, but also a concept.

This concept is defined with a Master Guild, providing a genuine Manufacturing Charter that accompanies any production request.

By becoming a member of this Master Guild, the cutler undertakes to follow three governing concepts:

Concept of regionality

Supplies, techniques, etc. must come from the Thiers basin, with no exceptions.

Concept of quality

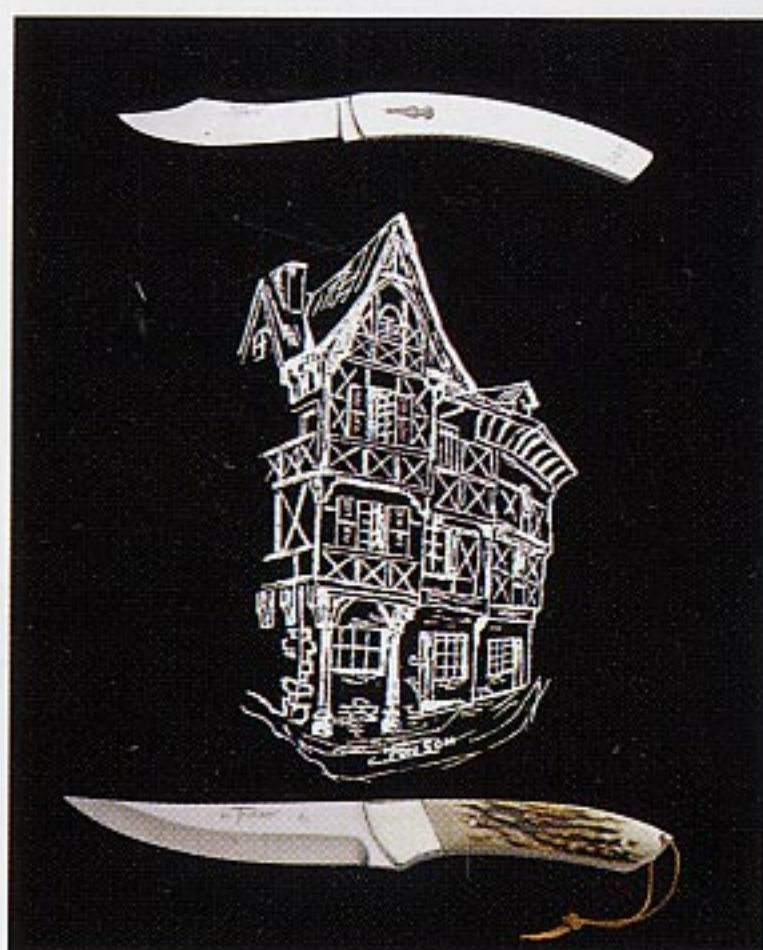

Prototypes must be subject to approval by a Commission, after which a team of Master-Inspectors from the Guild carries out quality controls.

Concept of morality

The knife must not be surrounded by any commercial device or detracting wording aiming to mislead the owner, which is why you will never see expressions such as "genuine", "authentic", or "superior" alongside the Master Cutler's brand name. Because "Le Thiers", naturally and intrinsically is all this at once.

The fruit of the shared endeavour of an entire profession, "Le Thiers" bears the name of its town, capital of the cutlery industry. Indeed, no town can rival the status of Thiers, recognised since 1240 (at which date the town already listed forty cutlers). Since then, Thiers has continued to develop a tradition which still involves over 200 businesses and nearly 5,000 employees.
